the subject of offices, he had deemed it proper to ask the senate to act upon it; but, as that question had subsided, he now deemed it proper to ask the senate to vote whether it would return to the ancient policy of government to a rule which had existed from 1789 to 1867, and which (notwithstanding the condition of the statute books) had practically existed since the accession to power of General Grant in March, 1869. President Grant had recommended its repeal, so that he (Hoar) was acting under pretty substantial republican authority in trying to get rid of this legislation. It seemed to him to be totally inconsistent with the constitutional theory of the government/or a president, in whom the executive power was expressly lodged by the constitution, to be compelled to answer to that responsibility when instruments were forced upon him against his will, or in whom he had no confidence. While expressing himself in full sympathy with the principles of civil service reform, he still declared his conviction that the people of the United States expected and demanded that no man should be kept in an executive employment who had not the confidence of the person responsible for the success of the executive functions.

SUBSIDIZED LINES.

Report of the Sub-Committee Appointed to Investigate Their Obligations. WASHINGTON, December 14.—The entire morning's session of the house committee or posteffice and post roads was occupied in the reading of the report of Representative A. J. Warner, of Ohio, on the obligations of subsidized railway telegraph lines. The report is based upon the investigation ordered by the house last year under a resolution of inquiry introduced by Representative Anderson, of Kanasa.

Kansas.

Mr. Warner was appointed a sub-committee of one during the last session to prepare a report for the committee's consideration. It is a port for the committee's consideration. It is a very long document. It begins with a summary of the several acts providing for the construction of the Pacific railroad and telegraph lites, for which grants of land and bonds have been made. After an exhaustive argument, the conclusions of the sub-committee on several points at issue are stated as follows:

1. That the obligation to construct, maintain and operate a telegraph line is the same as an obligation to construct, maintain and operate a line of road.

Company. That as public aid can be granted only for pub

3. That as public aid can be granted only for public purposes, such telegraph lines as well as railroad lines must be operated for the equal benefit of all persons, companies or corporations without discriminations in favor or against any one.

4. In order that all may enjoy equal facilities, privileges, and the use of such telegraph lines, it is necessary that the same facilities and terms as to the reception and transmission of messages should be extended to one telegraph line that are granted to another; that in this matter there should be no discrimination. It is, the report says, not a question of vested rights, and it is not propored to change the condition of a char er or disturb vested rights, but it is simply a question of requiring railrords. it is simply a question of requiring railrords, the beneficiaries of the several grants, to carry out the obligations assumed by them in accepting grants. Conceding that a subsidized railread is under an obligation to maintain and operate a telegraph line for the benefit of all, it follows that it is bound to accept telegraph number at the terminant of the properties of the contract of the terminant of the contract of the matter at the terminus of its lines from all tele-graph companies.

The committee find from the evidence before it that railroads are not maintaining and operating by themselves and for the public use, telegraph lines, as required by the several acts of congress under which they were authorized to build their lines.

It is held that contracts entered into between ailread companies and the Western Union telecacs of railroad companies were transferred to he Western Union, are beyond the scope of aw (these positions are sustained by many references to the granting acts and decisions of the United States supreme court.)

6. The right of the Western Union or any other telegraph company to construct and operate lives of its own to the Pacific coast is not questioned, but it is held that the construction of such lines cannot relieve railroad companies from obligations to maintain the lines themselves, as required by the several acts.

Upon the subject of remedial legislation the sub-committee says it recognizes the right of courts which undoubtedly now exist, but i owe their existence to acts of congress and have been recipients of public aid by grants of land and bonds, in accepting which they have sumed certain obligations, it therefore be comes the duty of the government to see that agreements and obligations entered into by companies are fairly carried out.

Therefore, the sub-committee proposes a bill in lieu of the several measures referred to, which extends to telegraph lines as well as the provisions of the act of June 20, 1874, relating railroads, and makes it the duty of the at-ency general to institute proceedings in the detal courts to adjudicate all rights of parties alleged to hold contracts or to have rights un-der any agreement entered into with railroad companies, and to annul and set aside contracts unlawfully made, by which railroads have ought to relieve themselves of their just obli-cations, to maintain and operate independent elegraph lines.

The penalties prescribed by the act of June 0, 1874, as to railroads are made applicable to telegraph lines as well. Representative Anderson's bill forbidding the collection and sale of news by a telegraph company was among the bills referred to the sub-committee, but it was held that it was not proper to be included in this bill, which related solely to the enforcement of the obligations of railroad companies in respect of their telegraphic lines. It relates rather to the question of the regulation of telegraph companies, inclusive and exclusive of land grant lines, and that it should be considered with federal regulation of inter-state commerce.

The report was ordered to be printed, and will be taken up for discussion by the full committee at an early day.

THE SUNDRY CIVIL BILL. The House of Representatives Takes Up the Measure by Items.

Washington, December 14.—The speaker laid before the house a lefter from the secretary of the treasury, submitting a book of estimates for the fiscal year of 1888.

Mr. Herbert, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, called attention to the dispute which has arisen between that committee and the committee on appropriations, as to which had jurisdiction over the estimates for naval yards and stations and the new naval observatory. After fully examining the question, he had come to the conclusion that the position taken by him on Saturday that the estimates were within the jurisdiction of the appropria-tion committee was erroneous, and he offered a resolution referring to committee on naval af fairs so much of the book of estimates as had ference to those objects.

Mr. Speaker called attention to the fact that Mr. Speaker called attention to the fact that Mr. Herbert's resolution disposed of only a small part of the book of estimates, and on motion of Mr. Blount, the resolution and book of estimates were referred to the committee on rules in order to enable the committee to report a resolution for the distribution of estimates.

On motion of Mr. Cabel, of Virginia, a bill

On motion of Mr. Cabel, of Virginia, a bill was passed appropriating $10,000 for grading and paving the approaches to the national cemetery near Danville, Virginia.

The bill was reported from the public building committee for the repair of public building at Charleston, S. C. Referred.

In the morning hour, Mr. Payson, of Illinois, on behalf of the committee on public lands, called up the bill granting to the Canabar and Clark's Fork railroal company the right of Continued on Seconp Column Fifth Page.

TO THE WATER'S EDGE. THE STEAMER "WHITE" ON THE MISSISSIPPI BURNS

A Great Number of Lives Lost Heartrending Scense on Deck-Perriculars of the Horrible Caras-trophe-Serves of the Chief Engineer and Other Survivors of the scene,

NEW ORLEANS, December 14 .- The steamboat J. M. White, from Vicksburg for New Or-leans, was burned at 10 o'clock last night at Blue Store, Point Coupe, thirty miles above Baton Rouge. She had a number of passengers on board. Her cargo consisted of 2,100 bales of cotton and 6,000 sacks of seed. Several lives are reported to have been lost, but Captain James F. Muse, who was in command, tele-graphs that only one person, a porter of the boat, is known to be lost. The boat and her

The J. M. White was built in 1878, at a cost of $225,000. She was regarded by many as the finest and fastest boat ever run on the Mississippi river. She was owned by Captain John W. Tobin. Her cargo was valued at $90,000. The insurance on boat is $29,000, and her cargo is undoubtedly fully insured.

A special to the Picayune from Bayou Sona says: The correspondent, in company with Mayor Irwine, Captain Muse and others, we up to the wreck of the White this morning. I was a sad sight. St. Maurice's landing, when the White burned, is about five miles above and within sight of this point. The fire illuminated the river and country for miles, and the burning floating cotton made a ghastly procession down the river. It is impossible, even burning floating cotton made a ghastly procession down the river. It is impossible, even after interviewing the officers and some of the passengers, to ascertain the total number of lives lost, but the pilots, stou, and Smith say that from the number of persons they saw around them in the river, fully forty must have perished. The following is the list as far as ascertained, of the white reasons mission:

L. H. Stafford, wife and daughter, of Vidalia; G. Wash Floyd, well-known steamboat man; Mrs. Murray, Natchez, Miss. Miss Agnes McCabe, of West Feliciana, and two other lady passengers, names unknown. Three men and one Woman were walking on the hurricane roof when the roof fell in, and all disappeared in the flames. They were doubtless burned to death. Two white men, names unknown in death. Two white men, names unknown in charge of the premium ox, jumped overboard and were drowned.

Mrs. Dr. Wade, of West Felicians, made a most miraculous escape, but is almost frantic with grief at the loss of her sister, Miss McCabe. She speaks in glowing terms of the heroic and gallant Captain G. Wash Floyd, who sacrificed his life in trying to save the lady passengers. All the officers of the White were saved. Thomas Barry, second engineer of the White, was on duty when the fire broke out in the cotton smidship. He says that for a time he thought the fire was under control, but it finally gained such headway they could do nothing with it. He states that the fire spread so rapidly that the boat in a few minutes was wrapped in flames. He thinks there were ten or a dozen lives lost, including a colored fireman and two colored chambermaids. One of them, named Martha Washington, second cook, colored, was also lost. He slso reports the loss of Captain Bird Floyd, superintendent of the Vidalia railroad, with his wife and daughter, who were passengers. He knows nothing as to the number of passens. He knows nothing as to the number of passengers that were aboard, but thinks there were not very many. He believes there were some women and children on deck. Evidence is accumulating that there were many more lives iost than the story of the engineer, given above, would indicate, notwithstanding the resover, woman indicate, notwinstanding the re-assuring telegram from the steamer's captain. Several survivors of the disaster reached this city today by the Mississippi Valley rail-coad from Baton Rouge. They had been taken to that point by the steamer Stella Wilde, which came along soon after the destruction of the White. Colonel L. S. James, a passenf the White. Colonel L. S. "About 10:10 o'clock last night, while lying at Dr. Frette's place above the postoffice landing, at Point Coupe, at which place the boat was loading cotton seed, fire broke out amid-ship between the engines, on top of the cotton below the boiler deck. Engineers Barry and Genny were on watch and gave the alarm, and the pumps were put to work, but with-out avail. The watchman gave the alarm by ringing a bell. Clerks Callahan and Bell aroused the people in the cabin. The fire spread rapidly and in less than fifteen minutes the boat had burned to the water's edge. There were four kegs of powder in the magazine and the moment the fire reached them the flames shot about 100 feet. The sight was the most shot about 100 feet. The sight was the most heartrending ever witnessed. The shrieking of women and children for help was awful."

He saw the superintendent of the Vedalia railread, standing aft of the ladies' cabin, throw railread, standing at of the ladies cabin, throw his little daughters into the water. He stood there and burned to death with his wife. There were in the cabin nine lady passengers and about eight men. At New Texas twenty deck passengers were taken on board, and all are supposed to be lost.

It is learned that Andrew Pierce, a sailor, and Anterio Reputs fireman, are the ones to and Antonio Rebutta, fireman, are the ones to whom all the credit of saving the survivors is due. All the officers and nearly all of the crew escaped. Four or five of the cabin crew only are known to be lost. No authentic list of the lives lost can be made. The names given are those personally known to some of the survivors.

The States has the following account, gathered from the officers and crew:

The boat had landed to take on a pile of cotton seed and there were between thirty-five and forty roustabouts engaged in this work when, precisely at 10:05 o clock everybody was startled by the loud ringing of the bell by Watchman Tom Miller. Immediately after the cry of "fire" was taken by twenty voices. In an instant, the direct confusion reigned. Men darted to and fro and the work of arousing the sleening passengers was begun. The fire In an instant, the direct confusion registed. Men darted to and fro and the work of arousing the sleeping passengers was begun. The fire was discovered by Thomas Barry, second engineer, who, with his partner, Steven Ganney, was on watch at the time. The first intimation he had of the fire was a small light on the top row of the cotton bales amidship which greatly resembled the flame of a lantern. Barry left his post to investigate and was astonished to discover that the light was caused by a bale of cotton briskly burning. Barry gave the alarm and his voice rang through the deck room of the vessel. Watchman Miller took in the situation at once and rang a huge bell located on the second deck. Miller stood at his post ringing the bell until he was forced to retreat by the fast encroaching flames. The noise of the clanging bell aroused William McGreevy, chief engineer, who was asleep in the "texas."

He sprang out of bed and groped his way through the smoke to wake up his partner, John Pallasier, second assistant engineer, who was asleep in the forward part of the "texas." About midway he met Pallasier, who had also been aroused by the tell and was on his way to then tor McGreevy. not seeing any one, and believing that all but themselves had left, they crawled out on the hurriagne deck and were compelled to climb down, one one of the stanchions to the right side of the boat, whence they got on shore. In the meantime two streams of water were brought to play on the fire, but the heavy black volumes of smoke drove the engineers back. They fought the flames step by step, but were at last forced to drop the hose and save themselves. The fire burned with frightful rapidity, and, in less time than it takes to tell, the entire left side of the boat was a mass of flames. The fire soon caught the railing of the cabin deck, and, before assistance was to be bad, the boat looked as if she was ENCINCLED BY A STREAM OF FIRE.

cabin deck, and, before assistance was to be bad, the beat looked as if she was ENCINCLED BY A STREAM OF FIRE.

The crackling of the flames and the shricks of the passengers and crew caused the most intense excitement.

When the alarm was first sounded, Alex McVeay, head clerk, was sitting at the stove, in his cabin. The first peal of the bell caused him to rush outside, and seeing the flames leap high in the air, he ran back to the cabin and endeavored to get the books and money. The fire gained rapidly on him, and he was compelled to leave the office, but not before he had secured a sure of money. McVeay then turned his attention to the saving of cabin passengers, of whom there were about 15 or 18, including ladies. He first awoke the second clerk, John Callahan, who ran out of his room in his undershirt and trousers. Callahan and McVey went to each room and awoke the inmates. The terrified passengers quickly got out nearly all of shirt and trousers. Callahan and McVey went to each room and awoke the inmates. The terrified passengers quickly got out nearly all of them in their night garments. Among them was a gentleman, name unknown, but recognized as the superintendent of the Vedalia Southern milway. He had his wife and two children, girls of nine and twelve years, with lim. He called them around him and bade them follow him. By this time the flames had reached the cabin, through which that smoke was rolling. The panic-stricken passengers quickly made for an entrance—some to the stern and others to the front. The gentleman refer d to was among those that went to the stern. On reaching the deck he threw his children, one at a time, into the river. Before he and his wife could follow the flames had reached them, and they were burned to death. Two pilots on watch, John Stout and Bob Smith, were in the pilothouse, and were compelled to jump into the river, where they were picked up. They had a narrow escape from death.

The fire burned so quickly that it was impossible to see who was saved and who was lost. The deck was crowded with roustabouts and deck passengers, thirty of the latter having got on the vessel at New Texas landing, just above where the boat was burned. Nearly all of these was lost.

While the passengers and crew were escaping from the boat a steam pipe blew up and was hurled three hundred yards in the air. The force of the explosion caused over twenty bales of burning cotton to be hurled high in the air, where they revolved several times and then fell into the river. Immediately after the explosion sarieks were heard coming from the plesion shricks were heard coming from the stern of the vessel. For an instant two colored women were seen standing on the gallery just back of the wheelhouse, and the next instant they were hidden from view by the smoke and flames. Those who escaped were taken away from the scene by the steamboat Stella Wilde, which plies between Rayou Sara and Natchez. As the Wilde was backing out four kegs of gunpowder, that were in the hold, exploded and cotton and burning timbers were hurled in all directions. This virtually put the fire out, and what was once a palatial steamer was now

He gives the names of the following persons who were saved, but were all slightly injured and were left at Point Coupe: John Stahl, pilot; Hortense Smith, Mrs. Smith, of Racine, Wis.; and a gentleman Mrs. Smith, of Racine, Wis.; and a gentleman and his wife from Chicago, names unknown. There were about thirty cabin passengers and a number of negro cabin passengers in the burcau. The number of deck passengers is not known. Brown says that Wash Loyd, formerly clerk on the Will S. DISCUSSING THE TARIFF. A Conference of Democratic Congressmen

Washington, December 14.—About a dozen democratic members of congress had a conference tonight at the rooms of Representative McAdoo, in the Riggs house, for the purpose o considering the tariff question. A number o other members sent word that they were in full accord with the understood object of the conference, but were unable to be present. Among those in attendance were Representatives Randall, of Pennsylvania; Green and Pidcock, of New Jersey; Warren and Foran, of Ohio, Martin, of Alabama; Morrison, of New York; and Wallace, of Louisiana.

After a discussion of about two hours, during which members advanced their individual views as to what should be done, the following propositions were unanimously adopted:

First, that they stand opposed to entering upon the consideration of the pending Morrison bill.

And the Mayor Straightway Makes an Attack Upon Couple of Imported Temperance Lecturers— Pistels Drawn and Blood Spilt—The Case to be Fully Investigated. Etc.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., December 14.—[Special.]—A disgraceful affair occurred at Greenville, a town fifty miles south of this place, this morning. The people held a liquor election there yesterday, and the anti-prohibitionists won by a small majority. Some weeks ago, by invitation of the best people of the town, Messrs. Cheves and Beauchamp, two prominent temperance lecturers of Kentucky and Georgia, went down and entered the prohibition fight, About daylight this morning the leaturers went to the depot to leave for their respective homes. Colonel Cheves was attacked and brutally assaulted by the mayor of Greenville, J. T. Perry, and a crowd of whisky men and roughs. A gentleman, who was an eye-witness of the diffi-eulty, said: "Yesterday Colone! Cheves said something in his speech which offended Mayor Perry, though no one knew that the mayor's feelings had been ruffled at the time. This morning about 6 o'clock, while Colone! Cheves and Mr. Beauchamp were waising at the depot for the northbound passenger train, Mayor Perry, the city marshal and several whisky men attacked Colonel Cheves with clubs and brass knucks. I have no doubt that Cheves would have been brutally murdered had not the approaching brutally murdered had not the approaching train compelled Mayor Perry to get out of the way. Perry had knocked him down on the track with brass knucks, and continued to pound him for several minutes. Beauchamp had drawn his pistel to shoot Perry, and had not the conductor interferred he would have killed the enraged mayor. Colonel Cheves was helped on the train, accompanied by Beauchamp and

A prominent citizen of Greenville came in on the train tonight, and reports that when Colonel Cheves, the abused lecturer, returned to that place this morning, he was met at the depot by over 200 of the best citizens, who escorted him through the streets to the courthouse. An indignation meeting was held by over 300 good people, and but for the influence of cooler heads, Mayor Perry would have been violently dealt with. Cheves was taken to the residence of Major D. G. Dunklin, where he is now entertained. Leading business men and the best class of citizens are enraged and indignant. Further trouble is feared. A warrant was issued against Mayor Perry, charging him with assault with intent to murder, and will be executed tomorrow.

FORT WORTH, Texas, December 14.—The train robbery still monopolizes public attention, and the fact that highwaymen have managed to clude scores of officers who were out on hot tails causes alarm for the future safety of Texas trains. On all trains the training well armed, as did many passengers, but the feeling in general is that if three men can do what was done Saturday at high noon and escape, they or others emboldened by safety will repeat the exploit.

O. G. Miller, baggageman, returned from Vernon yesterday and says it is evident the men knew what they were about and primarily after the express. He says: "A short robber jumped into my car, got my money and watch, and demanded the express money. I told him that it was not an express car, that it was in front. He demanded to be told have to go out of the car before he could get to the express car. car before he could get to the express car. He car before he could get to the express car. He then ordered me out and told me to show him the way. I jumped out and he followed. By this time Messenger Ray had shut the door on one side of the train and before he could get around the train, Ray had shut the door and locked it. The fellow seemed to think he had lost enough time, and I was ordered in line, and turned over to the man guarding the engineer and others. All this time Ray was seated on his safe, both doors locked and pistol in hand, ready for the road agents. The remark made by one of the men that they had been laying for the train four days, shows they knew something about the working of the road. From the 10th to the 15th the express company brings returns from 15th the express company brings returns from agents of the road, to Fort Worth, the main office, and the express messenger had $3,000 in cash from Fort Worth and Denver agents, be sides remittances—the largest amount he had carried for some time.

There are some persons who believe that the short robber is the redoubtable Jim Cummings, but he does not answer to the descriptions of that worthy. The railroad company has determined to have the men caught if money can do it, and the directory will give the matter consideration at the annual meeting today. The full amount of money on board the train was $23,000 and the robbers secured $2,100 all told.

RAIDING A DEN.

Two Negro Gamblers Killed in Birmingham, Ala. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., December 14.-[Special.]

At a late hour last night, Sheriff Truss and Dejuty Sheriff Brown and four policemen raid-ed a negro gambling house in a notorious quarter of the city known as "Buzzard Roost." quarter of the city known as "Bnzzard Roost."
Six negroes were playing cards in the room, and when they discovered the officers they put out the light and began shooting. The officers returned the fire with fatal effect, killing two negroes, named Henry Hostler and Wyatt Harris. The other four surrendered and were placed in jail. A coroner's inquest was held this morning and the bodies left lying where they fell this afternoon. A large number of negroes gathered upon the scene and expressed great indignation at the killing, but finally dispersed quietly and no troubles is anticipated.

There was considerable excitement in the city tonight caused by the rumor that negroes would make an attempt to mob Sheriff Truss

Negro.

SANDERSVILLE, Ga., December 14 .- [Special.] Mr. Henry Sandman was sitting quietly in his apartment, in the act of retiring, when his attention was aroused by some one creeping in the passage, next to his door. As Mr. Sand-man had a considerable sum of money on his person, his lears were aroused, believing that an attempt would made to rob him. In a loud, clear voice, be demanded: "Who is there? No answer came, and he repeated the question. The only answer to the last demand was a shuffling of feet making for the darkness out side. Mr. Sandman again scated himself be-fore the fire and gave himself up to silent med-itation, which was prolonged for about half an hour, when the creeping was heard again. Mr. Sandman then picked up his pistol, and going noiselessly to the door, suddenly opened it, when a big burly negro rushed out. Mr. Sandman fired three shots at the fugitive, but to no avail. Mr. Sandman's quietude was not disturbed any more that night.

From Fun to Grief.

SANDERSVILLE, Ga., December 14.—[Special.]—The Alabama and Great Southern rail-road company have erected a turn table on the old baseball grounds within the city, and last Sunday a large crowd of small boys, white and colored, were out taking a free ride, which terminated as a very dear one to two or three of them. Three of the little negroes were severiely injured by the timber of the table mashing their legs against the timber and rails of the stationary track, two of them getting each a leg broken, while the other was fortunate in escaping with only a painful brui

A Custom That is Said to be Going Out of From the New York World.

As a Mail and Express reporter was standing in a saloon near the postoffice, two young men entered. They were seemingly acquainted with each other, for they stood and chatted together for a moment. Then one of them pro-ceeded to the bar, ordered a drink, paid for it and went out. The other did the same a moment later.

"Did you notice those young men?" said the white aproned bartender after the door had closed behind them.

"What about them?" asked the reporter.

"Well, each of them paid for his own drink and drank slone. A year ago that would have

On motion of Mr. Powell bills for a third reading were taken up and disposed of as follows:

A bill to regulate the registration of voters in Greene county. Passed.

A bill to incorporate the Atlanta and Edgewood street railroad company. Passed.

A bill to incorporate the Commercial Telegraph company. Passed.

A bill to repeal an act consolidating certain county offices in Oconee county. Passed.

A message was received from the house announcing that they had receded from the actionand had concurred in the senate announcement to and had concurred in the senate amendment to the bill incorporating the Macon, LaGrango and dirmingham railroad company, also that the house had refused to concur in certain senate amendments to the appropriation bill. On mo-tion of Mr. Butt the senate took up the appro-priation bill and insisted upon its amendments to the same, and ordered that notice of this action be at once transmitted to the house. On motion of Mr. Peëk, the senate went into executive session, and confirmed the following appointments by the governor:

Hen. Howell Cobb, judge of the city court of Clarke county four years, from September 12th, 1857. ¡Hon. Richard M. Jackson to be judge of Oconee county court for four years from November 18th, 1887.

Under a suspension of the rules the bills to incorporate the Athens and Jefferson Railroad company and the bank of Lumpkin were read the second time. The senate adjourned at 1 o'clock.

The House.

The proceedings in the house were opened with prayer by the chaplain.

Immediately after the reading of the journal Mr. Hunt, of Hancock, moved to take up the senate resolution providing for an adjournment on Saturday, the 18th inst. Yielding to the evident will of the house, the motion was withdrawn before a vote was reached.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Reports of standing committees were received and read.

The finance committee reported adversely upon the bill to repeal the act establishing the school of technology.

Mr. Harrell, of Webster, gave notice that a minority report would be offered, recommend-ing that the bill do pass.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL. THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The general appropriation bill was taken up for the purpose of considering senate amendments. The first amendment, to increase the amount to defray the expenses of officers of the penitentiary, in visiting convict camps, from $500 to $1,000, was opposed by Mr. Glenn of Whitfield, Mr. Henry of Chattooga, Mr. Felton of Eartow, and Mr. Harrell of Decatur. It was supported by Mr. Gordon of Chattam, Mr. McLendon of Thomas, and Mr. DuBose of Wilkes. The amendment was not concurred in. The second amendment, to increase the salary of the clerk of the railroad commission from $1,200 to $1,500, was also, not concurred The amendment to increase the appropria tion for the lunatic asylum $5,000, was adopted by a substitute appropriating $3,000. This money is to be expended in providing a greater supply of water.

The amendment to pay Jackson T. Taylor

$150 for making indexes of bills passed at this session was not concurred in.

The amendment to appropriate $100 to bind engrossed acts in the office of the secretary of state grossed acts in the office of the secretary of state was concurred in. The senate amendment relative to the capitol tax was not concurred in. This amendment provided that appropriations for the new capitol in excess of $150,000 be taken out of the surplus in the treasury.

Pending action on this bill, the house adjourned, the hour being 5 o'clock.

Legislative Notes. Captain John McIntosh Kell, the new adjutan general, was at the capitol yesterday. He was the recipient of much attention.

Mr. Crawford, of McIntosh, said in a speech on he appropriation of $3,000 to the lunatic asylung testified morning, that "every sane man owned in negroes and two overseers." He held up his in fingers and then pointed to his two eyes to how what he meant. Mr. Crawford is one of the lold that the meant of the lored members.

Old Franklin, the banner county of northeast Georgia, is as faithfully represented in the house as any county in the state, by Hon. James A. Harrison. He is popular with his constituents because of his integrity of character and the fidelity of his nature. Mr. Harrison has filled several offices in his county to the satisfaction of all classes of his fel ow citizens. No member in either house is more vigilant and watchful of all measures of legistion that will affect the interests of the farmers.

Senator J. T. De Jarnette, of the twenty-eighth district, which comprises the counties of Putnam, Jasper and Morgan, is one of the senate. He was born and reared in Putnam county, where he now resides. He graduated at Emory college in 1855 with high honors in his class, being selected on account of his scholarship to deliver the salutatory. Senator be Jarnette is fifty-one years of age. He is a prominent member of the Methodist Episcopal church south. The present is his first term of service as a law-maker, but his views on all measures coming before the senate are highly appreciated by his colleagues. He makes a very valuable member of a number of important committees. As chairman of the committee on the academy for the blind he has rendered invaluable ervices. The editor of the Alabama State Journal said in an editorial that Senator DeJarnette had the most attractive home and the best improved farm he had ever seen in middle Georgia.

"So go to, now, thou demagogue, And soak thy bulbous head, And know the world will go on the same When thou, oh, dem., art dead."

THE AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT. Mr. Atkinson Wants a Committee to Investigate It. The resolution introduced by Mr. Atkinson of Coweta, in the house yesterday, provides for an investigation of the department of agriculture, its expenditures on inspection of fertilizers, and inspection of oils, and to report the result of its inrestigation; and also to report by bill such laws as westigation; and also to report by bill such laws as may be found necessary to correct existing evils.

There is a bill now in the house providing that farmers may plead failure of consideration in all cases where suits are for fertilizers, whether in the hands of an eminent holder or not, and this bill has been reported favorably by the committee on perfectlying with the recommendation that it "do acriculture with the recommendation that it "do agriculture, with the recommendation that it "de pass." The argument in favor of the bill is that the inspection does not protect the farmer against the use of worthless fertilizers. Mr. Atkinson thinks that the farmers should know whether the expense of this department is the use of worthless fertilizers. Mr. Atkinson thinks that the farmers should know whether the expense of this department is money wasted or not. If it is not a protection to farmers, there should be such legislation as will protect the farmer from imposition, and if it is a protection it should be known and will be demonstrated by a thorough investigation.

The law now allows the inspectors of fertilizers a salary of $1,200 each, and in addition thereto the fees received from the inspection of oils. There are six inspectors of fertilizers whose salaries amount to $7,200, and in addition thereto they have received this year from inspection of oils the sum of $13,000, making about $20,000 to the six inspectors. A short time since Mr. Atkinson introduced a bill providing that the fees for inspecting oil be laid into the state treasury. The investigation scught will furnish such information as will enable the legislature to adopt an economical and thorough system of inspection of oils.

The present laws charge a fee of 1-2 cent per gallon for inspecting oils in large quantities and one cent per gallon in small quantities. One of the oil companies does a very large business in this state, and for this reason has its oils inspected at one half cent per gallon for while other companies that are seeking to establish a trade have to bring in their oils in small quantities and pay a fee of one company a monopoly of Georgia's trade, as it has one-half per cent the advantage in competing for the Georgia trade. For this the committee is further especially directed to investigate and report as to whether the $70,000 arising from inspection of fertilizers is a tax upon farmers as a class, or a tax upon the dealer or manufacturer.

THE prohibition campaign has opened up lively in Alabama. Greenville had an election in which the wet men were victoions. Special hatred was felt toward two imported evangelists, who were set upon and beaten badly.

Mr. H. M. DOAK, the well known Tennessee editor, will be sworn in today by Judge Key as clerk of the United States circuit court of the middle district of Tennessee. The boys are getting into the pastures

A DISGRACEFUL system of collusion between congressmen and gamblers is reported from Washington. It seems that the gamblers have the congressmen so toiled in that they can dictate the course of legislation where their interests are at stake.

In York county, South Carolina, the ne groes are wrought up to a fearful pitch of excitement because of the wholesale arrests which have been recently made. The whites are scarcely less perturbed, and many persons apprehend serious trouble. The peo York are noted for their love of law, conservatism and common sense and it is not likely that they will allow a gang of irresponsible and hot-headed young men to involve the two races in conflict and to bring reproach upon the county and state.

Reviving a Periodical Scare. The murder of a white woman in Baltimore by two negroes who desired to sell the body of their victim to a medical college recalls the excitement many years ago in Edinburgh over an epidemic of body-snatch.

This Edinburgh horror created such general alarm that in many localities it excited an unjust prejudice against medical colleges. In the Baltimore case it is plainly evident that the two negroes who committed the crime are alone responsible, but in the rural inties of Maryland the affair will doubtless be misunderstood, and timid people will be unusually careful about filling up during the Christmas holidays for fear of being converted into "stiffs," not so much to promote the interests of science as to enrich cut-throat speculators. If this ridiculous apprehension bolidays the results will be on the right line.

The Baltimore case, however, stands almost alone in this country. Out of ten sand murders it may be doubted whether one can be found that was deliberately committed with the intention of selling the body to a medical college. There is no danger of an increase in this ugly branch of criminal industry.

A review of Hobart Pasha's book speaks of it in very high terms, and concludes by saying: "It makes no pretentions to literar,

It will be recollected that the critics spoke in the same way of General Grant's book. In fact, it seems to be regarded as a point in an author's favor to be able to say that his style is not literary.

There is a disposition on the part of our writers to encourage the idea that natural methods are the best, that our tongue is grammarless, and that it is worse than use less to waste time and labor on such a small natter as style.

Already we see the results of these teach Writers and speakers are growing areless and slipshod. Conversation is no longer a pleasant pastime, because people do not care to listen to jargon. People no longer read anything. They glance and skip along. They do not find it profitable to linger over jargon. Such a thing as anarchy in the republic of letters cannot exist long. The reign of law and order in the literary world is just as necessary as it is anywhere else. A return to old methods is inevitable, and in the future, as in the past, the works of the patient student, the midnight toiler, will be the work that will live. In literature, as in everything else, great and enduring results must have thought and labor back of them. No haphazard blow ever yet raised a monu-

Long and Short Sweetnin'. We read with mingled feelings of pride and patriotism Brother Watterson's frequent remarks on the sugar duty. There is sweetness-a lucidity-about them which shows that the able Kentucky editor is in possession of a powerful breech-loading polarscope which he is willing to use at a moment's warning.

Just now Brother Watterson is engaged in a zealous effort to commune with the sugar planters of Louisiana. The impression we gather is that those hardy sons of toil are suddled together in one corner of Louisians in a state of consternation bordering on despair. The situation, from Brother Watterson's point of view, is one of startling doubt-Ominous clouds, suggestive of coming storms, are drifting athwart the political sky four abreast. All, however, is not lost. Brother Watter sen declares though he himself admits that a Kentucky smile or two convulses his classic countenance as he A s so-that there is a speak, in all this gloomy scenery. He announces that the duty on sugar is safe if the Louisianians will only cease to be protectionists and join the revenue reformers led by Brother Watterson and Mr. Morrison. "We bid them welcome," says Brother.Watterson, "to the camp of democratic tariff reform."

Imagine the stampede that will occur, should these Louisiana tariff men take Brother Watterson at his word. The moment they come in sight of the "reform camp," with their sugar kettles and other resounding acconterments, Brother Watterson and his band would take to the woods. Even the star-eyed goddess of reform would leave her warm bunk in Brother Watterson's marque, and use her legs mimbly and dextrously in getting away.

We are of the opinion, however, that the sugar planters of Louisiana will not be under the necessity of removing their kettles and skimming-pans into Brother Watterson's camp. They will be taken care of by the common sense that holds the fort in congress whenever the free traders are preparing to make a raid.

Doubtful Statistics.

Statistics are sometimes misleading. Reently, when fears were expressed that the immense structures in New York would crush themselves by their own weight, a mathematician computed that it would require a height of 2,700 feet of wall to crush the bottom bricks. This satisfied the timorous, as it is not believed that buildings of such an altitude will be erected.

But there are all sorts of bricks. None of our bricks equal those of ancient Rome, which are today as sound as they were three thousand years ago. In some parts of the country the bricks crumble easily, and are affected by the weather. The New York mathematician had a superior article in mind when he made his calculation. Somebody will be misled and will find his tall building tumbling about his ears. Don't rely too much on fancy statistics. Go in for what you know is solid.

Words and Their Uses.

The St. Louis Republican has an enter taining editorial on "The Curiosities of Philology," in the course of which it says:

There is no doubt that our colloquial language has many more elements of the old gypsy tongue than is supposed, and there is certainly no doubt that many words which were once considered "low," are now used freely by the best speakers and writers. On the other hand many words which are now taken for slang were once in good repute. Thus it was once quite as good English to bid a person hold his gob or gab as it would now be to bid him to hold his peace. Gad, in the sense of trudge, was used in an old translation of the Bible Crack, meaning dashing, brilliant, as a crack regi-ment, a crack sermon, was once perfectly good Eng-lish. Buckle to or underwas once a correct expression for yield or give up. Prig is excellent Shak-spearean for steal; and such words as dodge, dan-der, and gallivant, which have been banished from lips polite, were perfectly admissible in the e. Jabber, hoax, mob, sham (what would Mr. Carlyle have done without sham?) were first in troduced in the days of Dean Swift, from whose Sulliver we have the excellent verb and substan-ive, gull; and poor Noll Goldsmith was the first to currency to fudge, though the word itself from the name of a certain Captain Fudge, not otherwise memorable, who lived long before Goldsmith's time.

Our contemporary probably means that Goldsmith was the first to give literary currency to "fudge," but even this is to be doubted. There is no doubt, however, that it was in use among the people before Goldsmith was born, and it is still in use. It is questionable whether it was ever used as slang. There are words—such as the adjective "bully"-that are irredeemable slang. and others that are slang only by reason of their newness. What the philologists term 'slang" is simply one of the elements of the tends to sobriety and good order during the I growth of the language. A word that represents an idea is always a welcome addition to the language. The power of steam was discovered long before James Watts's experiments. Before Watts's day, an Englishman wrote an essay on the "Extraordinary Lifting Power of Boiling Water." When this power came to be called "steam" people began to understand and appreciate the dis-

> "Gad" and "gadding" are still used by the people and they are not only trenchant colloquialisms, but they are good literary words. So with "trollop." "Gab" and 'gob" are still used, but their meaning is different. "Gab" is useless talk, and we all know what is meant when we hear of a "gob of fat." A good word sticks, and all these words are good words for they stick. In regard to the words coined, or supposed to have been coined during the war, the Repub> lican says: The era of the rebellion was prolific of slang, and if the present subject were Americanisms, and not slang in general, quite an article might be written on the curious words to which the war gave origin and some of which linger yet. The most curious of all of them may be briefly mentioned; the well known word skedaddle, used by the other side when an able general "retired upon his supports." In old Scotch there is, strange to say, precisely the same word, meaning to spill, and if it had been used in the war originally or generally with reference to cavalry, we might suppose that it had been introduced by some soldier from the neighborhood of Dundec, where it is still in use to deride the unhappy men who were spilled from their saddles. As there is no evidence to support that explana-tion, another must be sought, and it seems to lie at hand in the Greek root sked, found in the verb skeddannumi, to run away. Not that our soldier were in the habit of using much Greek in ordinary conversation, but that "somebody's darling," fresh from college, may quite likely have tacked the ridiculous termination on the Greek root, and so manufactured a word which is not likely to be for

> There has been a good deal of discussion over the origin of this word "skedaddle. The Virginian negroes, as well as the Georgian negroes, for years before the war used the word "skaddle" for "scatter," and we have little doubt that the word "skedaddle" had its origin in this. It is a very good word, too, but its most appropriate use is on the farm, where the hogs and sheep some times go skaddling or skedaddling through

At last we have a satisfactory life of our great confederate commander. The "Memoirs of Robert E. Lee," published by J. M. Stoddart & Co., New York, Philadelphia and Washington, has a completeness and a graphic interest not to be found in other biographies of the distinguished soldier. The volume contains about 700 pages. It is fully illustrated with sonal history of General Lee, which of course fills the major part of the book, was written by General A. L. Long, military secretary and chief of artillery, second corps, army of northern Virginia. The story of his life as president of Washington and Lee University, his death and the funeral ceremonies are described by General Marcus J. Wright, of the Army of Tennessee, and agent of the United States for the collection of confederate records. Generals Long and Wright perhaps enjoyed better facilities than any two men living for the preparation of an accurate and attractive history. Their work bears the marks of love and painstaking labor. They have used the maps of General Lee, and have papers, besides the information furnished the surviving members of the general's family. In the south this book will find its way sooner or later into every household, and the demand for it in the north will doubtless be very great. Captain W. B. Kendrick, a gallant ex-confederate, is the general agent for this region, and inquiries addressed to him will meet with prompt attention. PERSONS AND THINGS

THE late Charles Francis Adams expressed many times before he died his annoyance at the fact that he was usually introduced as the grand son of President John Adams and the son of the great John Quincy Adams. For people who were triendly to him merely because of his ancestry he secretly cherished a profound contempt. A MAN in London has published a pamphlet entitled "Twenty Doctors." The papers usually kind-ly add that Robson and Crane are about to appear in the "Merry Wives of Windsor." CYRUS W. Of the wives of the cabinet members, Mrs. Manning is this year mentioned as the favorite. Though not beginning to approach Mrs. Whitney in the splendor of her entertainments, or the elegance of her tollets, she is said to number more people among her friends than any other woman in "official" society. This is due to her winning manner as much as to her never-failing tact. There is no assumption of superiority about her, and her manner is the same toward all. Since Mr. Manning's illness Mrs. Mauning's ifirst care has been his health, and the improvement in his condition is due quite as much to her care of the secretary, as to the medical attendance he has had.

Ingalls, of Kansas.

He is the ghastliest, ghostliest looking man in congress, not even excepting that time-honored grand chief of the order of contented bachelors, Scnator Saulsbury—not Nate, of the Troubadours but Eli K., of Delaware. Although Senator Ingalls is over fifty-three years old, an examination of his cadaverous features, his shambling walk, his fiesh-less hands, would make one think that he must be well on to his 120th birthday. But though his body is prematurely old, his mind is not old, and his tongue certainly is not—because if ever any man since Brougham was master of the whole science and art of invective, it is John James Ingalls. His shrill voice, as it rises in the senate chamber to denounce an adversary, cuts like a knife. His keen sentences distill gall, and when he claws the air with his hooked hands he looks like an enraged hawk. But he is not a bad-hearted man; on the strary, he is exceedingly amiable and just, and his verbal vitriol-throwing is reserved for those cases where it is deserved. The democrats fear him in a political discussion. He is not great in a sus tained effort, like Mr. Conkling, but venomous tongue is always ready at a moment's notice. While other senators are marshalling their forces, Senator Ingalls has already lit into the enemy, and he has beaten him before the others are fully aware that something is impending.

SOUTHERN HOMEOPATHISTS,

Their Third Annual Session-The Progress of Homeopathy.

The third annual meeting of the Souther Homeopathic association in New Orleans, last week was an occasion of exceptional interest.

Dr. A. L. Monroe, of Louisville, Ky., the president of the association, delivered an able address, from which we make the following extracts:

which we make the following extracts:

Hemeopathy was introduced into this country is 1825 by Dr. Gram. For many years it met only as cial and profession a ignoming, so slow was its progress at first that in 1848, when the first homeopathic college was established, there were perhaps no more than one hundred homeopathic physicians in America. Today there are 10,000, and better still they have 10,000,000 clients, or an average of 1,000 only to every 1,000 physicians; the other 40,000,00 people of this country are consigned to the tende care of the 100,000 allopathic physicians, or an average of one to every 400 patients. I cannot thin that anything but difference in clinical results cat explain away the fact that the average homeopathic physicians gf this country has more than twice as many patients as the average allopathic physician.

According to the report of the bureau of statistic as many patients as the average allopathic physician.

According to the report of the bureau of statistics of the American institute, made last July, we now have 5 mational societies, 2 sectional societies, 2 state associations, 92 local societies, 13 colleges, 51 hospitals, 38 dispensaries, 22 medical journals and 33 pharmacies, to which list even in this short time has been added 1 college, 4 journals and 3 hospitals. Thirty-eight of the hospitals have reported 23,752 patients treated in the last year, and 33 of the dispensaries have prescribed for 185,600 patients, issuing 334,578 prescriptions. Students attending homeopathic colleges last synter number 1,124, and the alumni of teaching institutions number 7,315. Add to this the nearly 3,000 homeopathic colleges, we have it round numbers 12,000 homeopathic doctors in the United States. Our hospital property is worth 85,000,000, and an additional $256,000 has been added to this in one year. Our annual literature added to this in one year. Our amunal literature comprises more than 25,000 pages. mass of statistics, which, off-repeated and time-worm as they are; remain still unanswerable, rep-resenting, as they do, the comparative results of thousands upon thousands of prescriptions made by the two schools of medicine, and extending through a term of years. The first set I desire to present to your notice was compiled by a reputable life insurance company in 1874, from the death re-ports of the cities of Hoston for 1870, 1871 and 1872. New York, 1870, 1871 and 1872. Philadelphia for 1872, the year of the great epidemic of small pox there: Newark for 1872 and 1878. The table pre-sents the average death loss to number of patients treated during that time by the representatives of the two great schools of medicine:

Boston, 1870, '71 and '72. New York, 1870 and '71... Philadelphia, '70, '71... New York, '72, '73... Brooklyu, '72, '73... General average...

Here we have a mass of statistics compiled by carreful, conscientious workers, representing in the aggregate at least 1,000,000 prescriptions given 500,000 patients, and the work extending over a term of years of practice of at least 1,000 physicians of each school, and what do you think the aggregate average of this great work will show? Why, by a simple and easy calculation we find that out of every hundred patients each allopath lost almost twelve and each homospath little more than seven, an average conclusion because derived from the extended treatment of all the ills that flesh is heir to.

Dr. Fisher, of Texas, offered a motion to the effect that the Southern Homceopathic Medical Association appreciates the high compliment paid to this body and its worthy member, Dr. Orme, by the National Homeopathic Association, the American Institution of Homeopathy in the election of that gentleman to its presidency at its last meeting at Saratoga, which motion was unanimously adopted der, Claiming Heavy Damages. Most of the time of the superior court ye day was occupied in hearing the case of Aaron Tischmann vs. J. M. High. It is a suit for slander, and the plaintiff claims $5,000 damages. For many years Mr. Tischmann, the plaintiff, did business as years Mr. Tischmann, the plaintiff, did business as a merchant tailor on Whitehall street. His business prospered to such an extent that, as was stated by him on the witness stand yesterday, he was enabled to make a comfortable living and to lay by for a rainy day about $1,800 every year. All of a sudden the bottom dropped out of his business. His customers forsook him, his friends treated him coolly, his credit was ruined, and he was forced to go under all this, as he ciaims, on account of no fault of his, own. He attributes his downfall to an act of Mr. High. According to the evidence adduced Mr. Tischmann's brother's wife sometimes got goods on credit from High's store and generally plaid the bills when presented to her. It seems that some months ago a bill for six dollars was sent by Mr. High to Mr. Aaron Tischmann, who refused to pay it on the ground that he did not owe the money. The bill should have been sent to his brother's wife, for it was she who bought the goods.

THE VICTIM OF A MISTAKE. Aaron Tischmann Sues J. M. High for Slan

There was a mistake and a misunderstanding al round. Tischmann got mad and High got mad All the time Mr. High thought that Tischmann ad declined to pay a just debt, and he reported the matter to Alexander & Turnbull, the Atlanta atterneys for the United States Union Protection association, who, in turn, reported the facts to the home office. When the next issue of the Gazette, a journal published by the association, was issued it contained an item derogatory of Aaron Tischmann's business standing. No sooner was the article seen in Atlants than Tischmann's business began to suffer and his former creditors to: fuse longer to give him any credit. He was the victim of a mistake on the part of several persons. In his testimony on the stand yesterday he said: "Before the publication of this article my credit was good, and I could get all the goods I wanted from most any firm in Atlants, but after the article appeared my credit was ruined and my former creditors put me down as a dead beat. My customers left me, and one by one I was forced to get rid or my hands, till finally I was forced to quit business altogether."

Yorkville Jail on Suspicion. An official of the Air-Line, who came in from South Carolina last night, gives a graphic des-tion of the condition of affairs in York county. derived his information from two highly respectable young ladies who came from the scene of the trouble yesterday morning. The facts which he gleaned, as told late last night to a reporter of THE CONSTITUTION, are startling in their nature. The Alestory of the cruel murder of a white boy in York county by a band of negroes, has already been recited in these columns, and some of the succeeding occur-rences have likewise been chronicled, but there is much that has not yet been printed in the news-much that has not yet been printed in the newspapers.

The negroes who were suspected of being members of the gang of outlaws were arrested and lodged in the Yorkville jail. Some of the prisoners confessed their crime and implicated many others. Altogether about one hundred "suspects have been imprisoned. It was ascertained that a large proportion of the prisoners were certainly innocent of the boy's murder, and the authorities deemed it advisable to turn them loose. Day before yesterday seventy-five were released from jail, and the remaining twenty-five were to have had a hearing yesterday. The excitement in the county and town of York is said to be intense.

Intense.
Apprehending an uprising of the blacks hundreds of white men have gone to Yorkville armed to the teeth. The negroes, too, have gone there in large numbers, many of them being armed.
Threats of lynching were heard on all sides Monday, and a crowd of hot heade I young men were ready and anxious to do the work. But the best citizens of the place deprecated violence and took a brave and determined stand against this lawless gang.

lawless gang.

If the wise counsels of the conservative and law-abiding members of the community shall prevail, all further trouble may be averted, but should the reckless young men control matters and carry into execution their direful threats, then a scene of bloodshed will follow, which will cause the entire state to tremble.

The gentleman imparting the above information said that the impression of those who have just come from York is that the worst is not over, and a terrible conflict between the races seems imminent.

Correspondence Cleveland Leader. The conversation here drifted to diplomat ettiquette, and I asked Mr. Ward how he got over the dress coat question when he was our minister to China. He replied: "At the time I was in China the ordinary dress of the American citizen would hardly have been afit one in which to have appeared on a state occasion. The Chinese knew little about the Americans at that time, and it was perba more necessary to create a good impression there than at other places where our diplomatic relation had long been established. This coat was buttoned close at the throat, and on the whole was not a ba looking uniform. In China I wore it upon all state occasions, and it was generally admired. The Chi nese often asked me what the letters 'C. A.' stood for. I replied that the suit was meant as an hon to Chins, and that these letters stood for China and America, and in order to show how much our coun-try thought of China we had honored her by putting the C. before the A. This explanation was taken in good faith and the uniform was a suc-

CHARLESTON'S RELIEF FUND.

Report of Mayor Courtenay, Showing Hot the Money Has Been Used, CHARLESTON, S. C., December 14.—At a meeting of the city council tonight Mayor Courtenay submitted a preliminary report of the executive relief committee, showing that the total amount of $634,258 was received by them for the sufferers by the earthquake, and that the disbursements amounted to $448,119.

that the disbursements amounted to $448,119. The report says:

The committee will have repaired in all about 1,850 houses, out of a total number of over 7,000 in the city, at an average cost of about $250 each, not including over 100 houses at Mount Pleasant and in the vicinity of the city, and not including contributions amounting to $20,738 sent to the Summerville committee. Of the balance of $186,139, the committee will reserve $26,139 as, in their opinion, an ample sum for the plastering and closing up of unfinished business house repairs, and will make a special deposit with the city treasurer of the sum of $100,000, to be applied to the rebuilding of the city hospitals and alms house, repairs of public school buildings, or phan house, old folks home, and other charity expenditures for the poor. They would remark that this disposition of a portion of the contributions sent to Charlesson is in consonance with the wishes of the danors, expressed by them in letters to the mayor. Certainly no better use could be made of the sum of money, none which would be more satisying to donors everywhere than to replace the wrecked building necessary for the comfort and care of the needy, sick and poor, and thus make a permanent memorial of the magnificent giving of the American people in this our year of great calamity.

Large sums, in addition to the sum reported by the executive committee, were sent to Charleston with the request that they be applied to the relief of persons known by the recipients to be in need and whose wants might never become known to the committee, or might fall beyond the line of the rigid rules that the committee were bound to adopt and observe. Our own estimate is that the Charleston benevolent fund, the expression of love and the charity of myriads of people, will amount to at least 885,000. God bless the donors, one and all. God bless them, from men of means, who gave so liberally to the factory girls and little children, who stinted themselves; who denied themselves of some little gratification on which their hearts and been set, in order that their mite—blessing and blessed—should bring hope and cheer to the desolate hearts and shattered homes in this dear Charleston. Judge Fain and Colonel Rankin Cleared the Charges Against Them.

The joint committee to investigate the charges against Judge Fain and Colonel Rankin, relative to their alleged connection with the marble lobby, met in the room of the president of the senate, last night, for private consultation. The evidence was carefully reviewed, reference being had only to the charges against Judge Fain and Colonel Rankin.

Colonel Rankin.

The committee did not admit reporters to the consultation, but at the close of the meeting Senator Hawkes, the chairman, made known the result. It was decided that no evidence had been submitted which sustained the charges. The committee therefore, will report entirely expressions.

As the committee was appointed for two purposes only: viz. to investigate the charges against Judge Fain and Colonel Kankin, and to investigate the matter of the bonds of the Marietra and North Georgia railroad now held by the state, no conclusion was reached as to Mr. James P. Harrison. Whether a report concerning that gentleman will be made or not, is not known.

The committee will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock. for the purpose of beginning the investigation of the bond matter.

Editorial Short Stops Caught on the Fly by

The Constitution Reporters.
Sitting here listening to the monotonous call of the counters and the low responses of the tally-sheet keepers, as the municipal election of the city is being setfled, my mind runs back to some election sI have witnessed.

Down near Abrahamtown, in southern Florida, I dinessed the great presidential election of 1876, Men went wild with excitement. Votes were at a premium. A good portion of the state was grouning under the burden of radical rule of the rotten est sort. Federal soldiers paraded the streets of her principal cities. But away down there in the backwoods the spirit of freedom remained unies-tered, and those fearless cowboys and men of the woods strained every nerve to assist brethren in the black districts. t Suraterville, and charges were exhorbitant. Pures were made up and a ten word telegram was valued as high as a ten dollar bill by the men who felt that the fate of the commonwealth trembled in News came of a big rlot in Gainesville, and there was mounting in hot haste, and soon a caval-cade of determined men rode over the hills to the rescue? Happily the riot was quelled without further bloodshed. A few days later 1 rode into she City, and the most conspicuous object that rected the eye was the stars and stripes hosting in the wintry wind, and in huge letters printed on one of the bars was:

"Samuel J. Tilden," "Thomas A. Hendricks."

The history of the electoral commission is familiar to all, but would have been unhealthy for that comnission had those cow-boys and men of the woods got their hands on them. All the Indians in the Big Cypress swamp and all the miasma that ever om the everglades would have been lesser dangers,

In Georgia we usually have peaceable times. But away down in the wiregrass I have seen some stormy times. Near the Wolf Pit, in Irwin county, about a mile from the old Union road, is a spot of ground dedicated to universal suffrage. There are four pine saplings that stand close together, and that is the precinct. There is not a house in several miles of the spot, and when the boys used to go out there to vote they were monarchs of all they surveyed. Kegs, jugs, bottles and flasks were taken along, and all of them were well filled, for the boys were "awful scared" of snakes about that time of the year, but then we helped to roll up the great majority that seated little Aleck the intellectual giant, in the executive chair. Somebody raised a little dispute the day McDaniel was elected, and then two men took it up, and a blow was passed, and in forty seconds forty men were rushing at each other, scowling, shaking their fists, menacing with sticks, lighwood knots and an occasional knife. It looked like a bloody riot was inevitable. There was one man, however, who stemmed the torrent and cooled the angry crowd. That was the Hon. Bill Branch, who was a member of the legislature. A man of magnificent physique, he went among them coaxing, pleading and threatening until the matter was settled. Meanwhile the cause of the row, a stump of a negro, was lying dead drunk by a log, unadble to vote for anybody. The boys al took a drink, the managers returned to their saplings, and the election proceeded.

Down in Americus is a great place to hold an lection. On the night after the election Hon. C. F. Crisp had been invited to christen the new hose reel lately purchased by Mechanics fire company No. 2. and named "The C. F. Crisp," in his honor, We were all gathered around the reel, watching the ceremony, and Judge Crisp was grumbling about such a waste of good wine, when a messen ger came rushing in at the door and cried out, "Crisp has been elected to congress!"

Al wild hurrah went up, and every body went up stairs and Fireman Watts called the board to order, and champagne began to pop and sparkle, when again the festivities were interrupted: "New York has been heard from and Cleveland and Hendricks are elected by a large najority!" There was a pause only for an instant, and then like a mighty stormburst a great shout went up, and hats flew in the air, and old men embraced each other, and tears of joy fell fast from many an eye. Crisp began to speak, but who could get the ttention of that crowd? Old man P. L. Mize, who was so tall that his head almost reached the ceiling, was lifted so high that he was nearly bent double, as he howled out a patriotic was drowned in a babel of cheers.

Next day the boys were found in stacks and piles bout the old court house yard, and old man Gless ner had the Recorder out, printed in blood red ink with all the roosters, death head and cross bones, git thar Eli, and other monkey notion cuts in the establishment printed in the column. The Lydis E. Pinkham cut was transmogrified into a goddess of liberty, and a bonfire was made by casting the ancient office towel in the grate.

ATLANTA IN LONDON. Colonel Stovall Addresses a Citizens' Meet-ing on the Great Exposition.

Vesterday was the time for the regular monthly meeting of the chamber of commerce. At 12 o clock, when the meeting was about to At 12 o clock, when the meeting was about to begin, it was observed that there were in the hall a number of citizens not members of the organization, and it was decided that it should be a citizens' meeting, open to all. The meeting was called to order by Captain R. J. Lowry, and Mr. M. Welch acted as secretary.

Colonel Thomas P. Stovall, the Georgia commissioner for the American exposition, to be held in London next year, was in the room, and was invited to address the meeting. He responded in a speech of consid-

the room, and was invited to address the meeting. He responded in a speech of considerable length, which contained much valuable information touching the great exhibition. He described the enterprise vividity and showed how important it is for Georgia and Atlanta to have a place in the picture. Other cities in Georgia are waiting to see what the gate city is going to do about it. Just so soon as Atlanta takes the initiative, they will follow her example. Colonel Stovall is desirous of inducing the citizens of Atlanta to raise the sum of $2,500 to be used to illustrate the city's advantages and resources. This money, Colonel Stovall thinks, can be raised without much trouble.

His address was heard with much interest by all, and at its conclusion Mr. John C. Whitner proposed the subjoined resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The American exhibition to be held in London, England, beginning the 2nd day of May, 1887, will be an unexampled opportunity to bring to foreign attention the products, the resources and capabilities of the state of Georgia, attracting valuable population, strengthening trade and inviting capital to invest with us, and

Resolved, That we call upon our fellow-citizens, one and all, to give this movement their assistance and hearty co-operation. Resolved, That Colonel Thomas P. Stovall, who has brought the matter to the consideration of the state, and who has been appointed commissioner of Georgia to the exhibition, is recommended by us to the executive and general assembly and to the people of Georgia, as a public spirited and capable representative of this meritorious enterprise.

Resolved, That the chairman be authorized to call another meeting for further action.

A fire which caused quite a sensation occurred in the Kimball house building last night soon after dark.

The fire was in Frierson & Scott's real estate of fice. The office is on the ground floor in the corner of the building at the intersection of Decatur and Pryor streets. It is one of the neatest and most attractively arranged offices in the city, and the great care which was lavished upon its arrangement was probably the cause of an almost serious fire last night. The office has been divided into apartments or sections by heavy cloth curtains suspended from brass rods. The curtains are so arranged that they can be pushed along the pole, and by moving them a quite little apartment is made or destroyed. Soon after dark several gentlemen who were passing around the corner noticed a bright light in the office, and upon a more careful observation discoved that the heavy curtains were on fire. The blaze was leaping up to the ceiling and the burned cloth was dropping to the floor in large live coals. Some one hurried into the hotel to notify Mr. Beermann, while others broke the large glass door open and entered. By this time hotel walters were on hand with buckets of water and the plentiful application quickly extinguished the fire before the building caught. The fire is supposed to have been caused by one of the heavy curtains coming in contact with a burning gas jet. No great damage was done.

A Fire This Morning.

An alarm of fire was rung in from box 16, located at the junction of Peachtree and Ivy streets about two o'clock this morning. The department responded and found the fire located on Calhoun, near Pine street. A small frame building occupied by Frank Tracy as a family grocery store was en-tirely destroyed and all the contents consumed. The loss is unknown.

Late last night it was learned that a game of "draw poker," which was conducted in an old barn some three or four miles from the city, had ended in a fight between some of the players. The father of one of the combatants came to the city to get the services of a physician to dress the wounds of his son, who was badly cut in the shoulder. The only facts that the old man could give were, that yes ferday afternoon a party of five or six colored men engaged in a game of cards, and were wellampiled with whisky. That during the game a dispute arose between two of the players about the strength of their hands. Both snatched for what money there was in sight, and then clinched in a struggle. Blows were parried and a knife was brought into play. Dave Brown, the old man's son, was cut in several places and blod profusely. It is not known who did the cutting, as four or five of the negroes were engaged in the scuffle. The crowd dispersed, and the old man came to town for a doctor. He says his son is pretty bedly hurt, but is not in any danger. The old man threatens to in dict the whole party if he can find out their names. Late last night it was learned that a game of

"Because every foing is being worked to that end. The hands are experienced, and know the most important rule in railroad building." "What's that?"

"What's that?"

"Follow orders strictly, or as your printer would say, follow the copy if it goes out of the window. The engineers are the best, and the superintendents old verkers. The cuts are made carefully, the en bankments built solidly and properly and the curves constructed accurately. When the road is built the settling of the dirt will be done. There will be no great caution to exercise in vain running because the road is new. The ties are the best and the rail a first-class sixty-five pound steel rail. No, the Georgia Midland is a fine piece of work."

Johnson, the colored emigrant agent, of whom mention was made in The Constitution a few days since, has just returned from Barnwell, Orangeburg and Laurens counties, in South Caro-lina, where he went to look after several parties of lina, where he went to look after several parties of emigrants who are preparing to start for the west. Johnson says that while in Orangeburg county he found out from the pastors of the negro churches that the movement is assuming immense proportions. The preachers in the various negro churches have been urging the members of their flocks not to be tempted to leave South Carolina for the cold regions of the west, but there is so pronounced a feeling of discontent and unrest among them that the masses will not heed this advice. Consequently, by the hundreds and thousands, they will move west just as soon as they can get transportation. Johnson says the first party of three or four hundred will pass through Atlanta some time next week.

Mr. John Reynolds, who farms near the town of Thomson, was digging out an old well a few days ago, which had not been used as far back as h days ago, which had not been used as far back as he could remember, when, after reaching a depth of about twenty-two feet, he struck a massive iron chest. This he brought above ground with great trouble. In this old rusty box he found a number of curious and valuable articles. He was in the city yesterday exhibiting them to his friends. One of the most valuable of these is a solid silver watch, of beautiful design and workmanship, containing some remarkably fine carvings and inlaid work. Cut in the center of the case are these words: "J. E. May, Augusta, 1863." Mr. Reynoldsprizes this treasure highly. He refused an offer of $100 for it,

Atlanta Wine. From the Madison, Ga., Madiso

We have been disgusted at the repeated flings made at Atlanta wine stores by newspaper fings made at Atlanta wine stores by newspapers and correspondents. If they will only let Atlanta wine severely alone when visiting that city, we pledge our honer that the wine will be equally as considerate and leave them alone. After sixty odd years' experience we have yet to see or hear of any case where either wine or whisky, whether Atlanta, Augusta, Macon, Savannah or Cross-roads doggery sale, ever hurt a man who did not first try his skill in hurting it. Gentlemen, in heaven's name, do let Atlanta wine alone, or manifest good breeding enough to leave off libelling it.

It is with deep regret we record the death of Mr. L. D. Tussey who, after many weeks of illness from typhoid fever, passed gently away from the cares of life in Atlanta, Ga., on the 4th instant. The business and social world has lost in him a great light, for everywhere he commanded the respect and admiration of all who knew him, and was the embodiment of "God's noblest work, an honest man." In private life Mr. Tussey's influence was that of gentleness and love. The halo of his refinement and affection brightened the hearthstone of the old homestead and shed its rays upon all who came within its reach. To him, life was just blooming into fall beauty, soon to be crowned with the most sacred and tenderest of ties, for the future seemed linked with buds of promise, whose perfume could only expand into full fruitton of success and happiness, but when we least expect the fell destroyer, creeps in, with the sublicty of a serpent and snatenes from our grasp the dearest objects, leaving stricken hearts and crushed lives, to chant the silent requiem of blasted hopes, thus we are constantly reminded, to place our trust only on things above, whose joys are eternal around the throne of Cod.

CLEVELAND'S BAKING POWDER

Contains only purest grape cream of tartar, bicarbonate of soda, and a little wheat flour, the latter to preserve the strength of the powder-nothing else whatever.

What other manufacturers impart to the public a knowledge of ALL the ingredients that enter into their baking powder?"

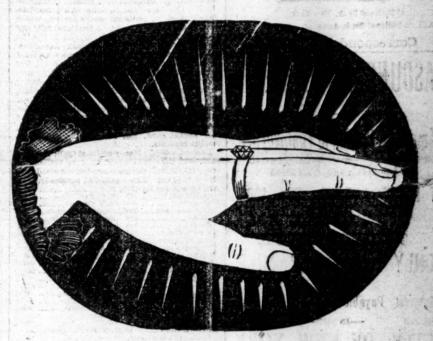

Consumers have a right to know what they are using as food. In these times of extensive adulteration the public should demand this information, and in all cases where not given should refuse to purchase the baking powder.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock

Exchange. NEW YORK, December 14.-The stock marke gave promise of some improvement in the early hours, but was feverish and unsettled to a large extent, although outtations advanced. The latter bidding up of money to an extremely high rate of fered another opportunity to the bears to vigorously raid high prices and a decided slump, bordering on a panic, was effected in the last hour. The unset-tled condition of New England kept the market everish and irregular when it would otherwise have been firm and strong. Southern specialties, by coormous declines coupled with the selling of New England, were the principal features of the afternoon trading. The favorable factors in the divation were the steady buying for foreign ac-count, which was specially noticeable in the fore-acon, and a further drop in rates for sterling ex-change. All such influence, however, counted for lought in the rush to sell in the afternoon. In the orning there was some improvement in Jersey entral on the announcement that the Baltimore of Ohlo was now using the road under contract, and the stocks bought by foreign people were pron and the stocks bought by foreign people were prom-imently strong, including Reading, Erie and St. Louis, and Nashville. A Boston party threw New England upon the market in large amounts when it became apparent that Central would pass into the hands of a New York party. At the same time advantage was taken of the absence of the princi-pal supporters of the stock by the bears and room traders, to become, it vices with resulting in a pai supporters of the stock by the bears and room traders to hammer it vigorously, resulting in a break of over 6 percent. The opening was active and strong, although there was an absence of the usual result at that time of day. The advance over last evening's final figures ranged from ½ to ½ percent, though a few stocks' showed slight declines. After some slight hesitation an advance occurred covering a great part of the first hour. Now England hydrology and in many cases. land broke badly, however, and, in many cases under its influence early gains were lost. Toward noon the upward movement resumed, and at that time fractional advances were general throughout the list. In the afternoon, however, a general decline took place, Southern stocks leading, which was checked before 2 p. m. A fractional rally was ollowed by a renewed weakness, and in the last hour the decline became a semi-panic. About one third of the entire day's business was transacted in the last 45 minutes and the market closed very active and weak at the lowest prices of the day. The total sales of stocks were 570,000. The closing prices again show material declines throughout, and Chattanooga leads with a decline of 22½ per cent; Tennessee coal, 22: New England, 61/8; Nor folk and Western preferred, 3%; Louisville and Nashville, 3%; West Point, 3%; Canada Southern, 2%; Lackawanna, 2%; Reading, 2; and others,

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Fentures of the Speculative Movement in Gain and Produce.
Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, December 14-The tone was quite heavy in wheat at the opening this morning, owing to the showing of heavy receipts here and at northwestern points. The starting point for May delivery was 85½c, but, cables coming in strong, caused a rally to 8cc, and the market sold rather firm about this figure until near 1 o'clock, when offerings became more than usually heavy, and a steady de-cline to $19% followed. On the afternoon board values continued to recede. May touching 84% and closing for the day at 85c. The feeling was heavy at the close.

There was a moderate shipping inquiry for corn, and the temper of the market was strong early in the session with a good speculating buying, and prices advanced %c, but fell back again with wheat and closed at about yesterday's figures. Oats ruled steady and stronger early, but fell back and closed heavy at yesterday's figures.

Provisions were active and stronger, owing to light receipts of hogs. Mess pork opened 5@71/46 higher, advanced 10e additional, but receded again and closed a shade higher than vesterday.

JUDGMENT AGAINST THE DEFENDANTS.—In the United States circuit court, argument was heard yesterday in the case of the government vs. Ben. C. Martin and others for debton distillers bond. Judgment was rendered against the defendants for $37.80, principal and the costs.

THOSE LOVELY CHRISTMAS CARDS.—Already Those Lovely Christmas Cards.—Already Christmas cards are in demand, and young belles and beaux are buying the pretty love laden missives. By the way Frank Lester, the progressive and popular stationer at 5 Peachtree, has the most complete, select and elaborate stock ever brought south.

Charges not Proved.—In the cases of the United States vs. Allen Finley, Dan Finley, Lafayette Evans, Sam Evans, Thomas Cock, and Daniel Beard, charged with violation of the revenue laws, a nolle procequi was entered because the government failed to prove its case, and all the defendants were dismissed.

A COLORED CONFERENCE.—The North Georgia conference of the colored Methodist Episcopal church will meet in annual session in Atlanta this morning at 9 o'clock.—The opening sermon was preached lest night by J. R. Jones, of Augusta. The conference will be held in the Butler street church, Bishop Nutes, of Kennecky, presiding. The ministers and delegated tucky, presiding. The ministers and delega-began arriving.

TEYING TO GET A NEW TRIAL.—The United States district court was occapied yesterday in hearing a motion for a new trial in the case of hearing a motion for a new trial in the case of Dean vs. the Richmond and Danville railroad. The snit was brought by the plaintiff to recover damages for personal damages received, and, has already been stated in The Constitution, A verdlet for the defendant was rendered. Elaborate arguments were made yesterday on both sides, and the judge reserved his decision.

SISTER CATHARINE QUITE SICK.—Sister Catharine, superioress of the convent of the Sacred Heart, is very low with pneumonia at the convent on Luckie street, and grave fears of her recovery are entertained by her many the convent on Luckic street, and grave lears of her recovery are entertained by her many friends. Sister Catherine is well known in Savannah, Macon, Augusta and Columbus, hav-ing lived in each of those cities. She is being watchfully attended, and every thing possible to produce a favorable change is being done. Late last night she was quite low.

JULIUS WATTS PARDONED-In 1881, in the Julius Watts Pardoned—In 1881, in the superier court of Muscogee county, Julius Watts, colored, was convicted of stealing, and was sentenced to serve a term of ten years in the penitentiary. The amount Watts stole was less than one dollar. Since his incarceration the law under which he was convicted, has been changed so as to provide a lighter penalty. In view of this fact, and also on account of numerously signed petitions, Governor Gordon yesterday pardoned Watts, and he will be immediately set free.

Opening Someropy Else's Letters.— Charles D. Loyd, an attorney at law, who practices at Mount Vernon, Ga., was arrested on the 11th of this month, charged with taking letters from the postoffice at Mount Vernon, addressed to another person with the design to chattened correspondence. This arrest was made obstruct correspondence. This arrest was made at the instance of Inspector Griffin, who inves-tigated the case. The accused acknowledges the act, but denies the motive ascribed to him in the warrant. There are two cases pending against Loyd, and both will be passed by the

DEATH FROM HEART DISEASE.—Mrs. Nancy Fry died yesterday afternoon, very suddenly, at her home on Scott street. Mrs. Fry was about thirty-six years of age, and has been in apparent good health all her life. Yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock she began to complain of intense pains in her chest, and a physician was sent for, but before he arrived the lady was dead. Her death was due, so the physician declared, to heart disease, and a burial certificate so stating was given. Mr. Fry was in Birmingham at the time, and was telegraphed soon after the death of his wife. He will reach Atlanta this morning. DEATH FROM HEART DISEASE .-- Mrs. Nancy

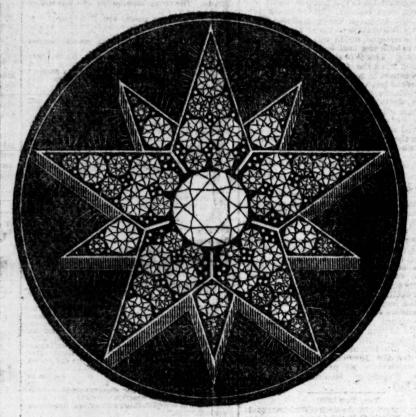

A PETITION TO CONGRESS.—At the citizens' meeting yesterday a petition to congress was read asking for a suitable appropriation for the improvement of the harbor of Tampa, Fla., aud for the erection of a customhouse there. The following resolutions on the subject were adopted by the meeting: Resolved, That we heartily indorse the above petition in full and commend it to the patient and favorable consideration of his excellency, the president of the United States and to the honorable members of con-gress; that the secretary beinstructed to engross these resolutions on the petition referred to and to forward them as above indicated.

Fell From the Train.—George Caston, a negro man who was en route to Birmingham with several other negroes, who are going to work on the Alabama railroad, fell from the train near the cemetery yesterday, as he was coming into the city, and was severely hurt. Caston [was standing on the platform with two other darkies, and when near the cemetery, slipped from the steps and fell. The train was moving at a good speed, and the darky was knocked senseless. He was picked up and taken to the Ivy street hospital, where he was attended. He will be able to resume his trip in ten days or two weeks. The other negroes left on the Georgia Pacific yesterday afternoon.

A DEFORMED FAMILY.—A family of four, father, mother, son and daughter, attracted considerable attention at the union passenger depot yesterday. Every member of the family was in some way deformed—the mother less than any of the four. The father's deformity was due to a fall which injured his spine. The mother's deformity consisted in an extensive wend on the side of the face, while the two children were crippled in their feet from birth. The head of the family gave his name as J. W. Withens, and says that he came from North Carolina and is going to Arkansas. They remained at the union passenger depot for two or three hours.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.—Miss Clara Basyle was united in marriage yesterday at the home of her parents in Chattanooga to Mr. Henry Shipp, of Atlanta, in the presence of a large number of friends. After the ceremony the guests were invited to an elegant repast, which was enjoyed by all present. "After an hour spent among their friends Mr. and Mrs. Shipp were driven to the union passenger depot, where they boarded the Western and Atlantic train. They reached Atlanta last night at 6:40, and were met at the passenger depot by a host of friends and were driven to the home of the groom's father on Larkin street, where a pleasant evening was passed with friends. Mr. Shipp is an industrious mechanic, well and favorably known in Atlanta, while his bride is a young lady of sweet disposition. OBANGE BLOSSOMS.-Miss Clara Basyle was

SELLING WINES.

UDGE ANDERSON PROMISED AN ABUNDANCE OF WORK.

C. J. Vaughn, who runs a winercom at 52 Peachtree street; J. C. Beeser, who pursues the same avocation at 216 Decatur street, and Mack Ross, a negro without home or headquarters; were all arrested yesterday and booked for violating the robibition laws.
This makes the biggest day's work against the vinerooms yet registered.

Vaughn's place is located in the old triangular Vaughn's place is located in the old triangular building at the junction of Peachtree and Broad streets, and, like many other winercoms of the present day, was a saloon before prohibition went into effect. During the days of saloons in Atlanta, Vaughn was the possessor of a license issued by the city council, and conducted a quiet, orderly saloon. When his license expired on the first of last July, he had about all bis certify prossessions in harmoon file. his license expired on the first of last July, he had about all his earthly possessions in bar-room fixtures and furniture, and, as a natural consequence, turned his attention to the wine room business when it began to bloom. His wine room was conducted on the same principle as his saloon habeen during its existence, and no thought of a case against him was entertained by any one who knew, until a few days ago. One day last week, Patrolman Nolan, received information which laduced him to think that Vaughn was violating the law, and at once began an investigation. His work convinced him that Vaughn was selling wine by the drink, and was, probably, disposing of liquor and beer, and yesterday about noon caused the case to be made. The defendant denies the truth of the charge, and says he will be able to establish his innocence when the case is heard.

THE DECCTUR STREET CASE. For years past J. C. Beeser's name has covered the stained glass in front of 216 Decatur street. Beer and whiskies in quantities untold have been lifted over the counter by the attendant and galoed down by anxious thirsty patrons. The building is a small one, and will not accommodate a large crowd, but it was very popular and was always througed. For years Beeser disposed of drinks at the stand, and did it in stich a quiet way that the police were never called upon to look into his business. With the inauguration of winerooms, Beeser procured a wineroom liceuse and throwing open police were never called upon to look into his business. With the inauguration of winerooms, Beeser procured a wineroom license and, throwing open his doors, which had been closed for some weeks, started out to slake public thirst with domestic wine. The wines were purely domestic and acting like all domestic wines do, soon tangled up his pairons so badly that the attention of detectives was drawn toward him. The detectives appeared upon the scene without knowing anything absolutely, but by careful watching they ascertained enough evidence in their opinion to justify a case and yesterday aftermoon it was booked. The case will be heard Saturday.

"Mack Ross, the negro who was one of the trio booked during the day, is charged with selling liquor or with furnishing liquor to be sold. His arrest was due to the arrest of James T. Leslie night before last. During the session of police court yesterday morning Leslie was arraigued for trial and to the charge entered a plea of not guilty. Three witnesses who were introduced swore most positively that Leslie had furnished them with iquor varying in quantity from a half pint to a pint. One of the witnesses said:

"Leslie came to me some time ago and asked me if I didn't want some whisky. I told him that I did, and then he said if I'd give him a nempty bottle and some money, the price of a half pint. I believe, and in a short time he brought me the liquor."

The other witnesses swore to the same statement,

the liquor."

The other witnesses swore to the same statement, and when Leslie was asked for his statement, he admitted that the witnesses had sworn correctly. He then said.

admitted that the witnesses had sworn correctly. He then said:

"I did not sell the liquor. I never sold any in my life. Mack Ross, a negro who stays under the O'Neil building on Decatur street, at the corner of Collins, came to me some time ago and said if I came across any one who wanted whisky he could get it. When I got the money and bottles from these gentiemen I went to Ross and gave him the money and got the whisky, which I carried back. I never made anything at the business." hisky, which I carried back. I never made any-ing at the business."
After hearing Leelie's statement Judge Anderson cided to continue the case and ordered the ar-st of Ross. Later in the day Ross was found and rested, but quickly and most positively denied e truth of Leslie's statement. Both men are yet the city prison awaiting the investigation which 'll take place in police court this morning.

staub fined twenty-five and costs. Albert Staub, the Whitehall street wineroom man who was arrested on the 9th of the present month, was arraigned in the police court yesterday morning to answer the charge of keeping for unlawful sale spirituous, malt and fermented liquors at No. 123, Whitehall street.

sale spirituous, malt and fermented liquors at No. 12% Whitchall strept.

The defendant intered a plea of not guilty to the charge and a dizen witnesses were called and sworn. The first witness introduced testified that we had taken meals and lunches in the restaurant connected with the wine room and that he had been supflied with wine for which he paid and which he drank in the restaurant. Another witness salied that he purchased wine and drank it while cating crackers left on the counter. Detective Keeves, by whom the case was made, stated that he had seen men enter the saloon, and facing the counter, call for wine. The defendant would take a bottle from the shelving and place it upon the counter with glasses, and after the men deank would put the cork in the bottle and my if hade. counter with glasses, and after the men drank would put the cork in the bottle and put it back upon the shelf. The detective stated that he had counted thirty bottles on the shelves upon which slips of paper bearing names had been written. He said that the owners of the bottles could go in and get a drink at any time. Staub, the defendant, said that the detective's statement was correct, but claimed that he did not know that he was violating the law. Judge Anderson disposed of the ase by imposing a fine of twenty-five dollars and cost.

All About Four Feet of Land.

Yesterday H. R. Duck brought suit against John B. Thompson to compel him to give up four feet of land. The plaintiff purchased from the defendant a piece of land facing on Wheat treet, for which he paid $4,250. It is specified in the deed that the land has a frontage of eventy feet on said street. The claimant alleges that he has got possession of only sixty-six feet, and prays the court to come to his rescue and to compel a specific compliance with the contract. The papers were filed in the

Yesterday morning a reporter of The Con-striction was permitted to examine a brace of femous due ing pistols, the property of Mr. LaTrout, of New York, who some years ago was a feroclous defender of the code, and scaled his devotion to the duello by engaging in four duels, one of which re-soluted family to his adversary and almost fatally to biunself. The pistols are cartainly upy looking weapons, with a bore almost as large as a rifle.

AN IMPORTANT FIRE.

he Great Exhibition to Be Given Today At 1 o'clock to-day the most important fire that has ever occurred in the state will take place on Marietts street in front of the capitol. It will be under the control of Chief Joyuer and Professor Ballon, the laventor of the American fire annihilator, and will be witnessed by Governor Gordon, the members of the general assembly, Mayor Hillyer, the members of the general council, the entire fire department and many prominent citizens. The severest test many prominent citizens. The severest test possible will be given the annihilator. The first test will be a large chimney fired with in-flammable material, which will be lighted and flammable material, which will be lighted and allowed to burn to a coal before the fluid will be put on it. This is to show the power of the annihilator when the fire is in the coiling, where it cannot be reached.

The second test will show what can be done on a building in flame. The third will be an open fire, while the fourth will show how the annihilator will put out naptha, the most inflammable of all known liquids.

We are gratified to notice the following from the New Orleans Times-Democrat. of December We are gratified to notice the following from the New Orleans Times-Democrat. of December 11th;

"Another artiste, Mrs. Katzenberger, come away down from Atlanta to sing on this occasion, gave two numbers, the second in response to an encore, the grand scene and air from "Freischutz," and the well known carcarole of Meyerbeer. That lady, whose voice is remarkably pure and clear, is particularly noticeable for her style and method. Her emission of voice is perfect, and the full round notes issue from her well trained throat with a breadth and sostenuto in which it is impossible to detect the least vibration. This is a precious quality which many of our singers should learn to acquire. Intelligent practice will do it. Mrs. Katzenberger was complimented with several handsome fioral offerings."

to get the house to consider the bill, if it does more. They claim the in-ence of the administration, and it said that Secretary Manning is in the sympathy with them. Mr. Randall has tion, and if defeated in that will offer own bill as a substitute for Mr. Morrison's. he knocked the Morrison bill out of time the first round. Three of his staunchest rs were the three New York congress who have died since last seasion-Mean ch, Arnot and Dowdrey.

INFLUENCED BY THE PRESIDENT. The fact is the president's message and the ot of the secretary of the treasury has unly been to strengthen the sentiment for on came on to the session he was ed the aggressive disposition which in in congress, though one of the most new is that he will be able to control a ty of the house and call his bill up on but even if he does he will be a long m the end of the struggle. A tariff would ensue, and at its conclusion Mr. would offer a bill as a substitute which ald leave the main features of the tariff practically ad make heavy reductions on internal reventire system of excise duties at the st practicable moment. This would comnatters considerably, for a number of ern and western members who will vote to take up the tariff question, prefer a reduc-
